Two Good Words; Mi Amigo Touch of Hypocrisy To Shoot At What? Big London Fire

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

It was truly a marvelous reception that Buenos Aires and the entire Argentine Republic, its President, Cabinet and people gave to the President of the United States. An enthusiastic crowd of a million and a half crowded every street in the great Argentine city, now in the spring season, and most pleasing were two words used by the Argentine President, Juan "MI AMIGO." "My friend," as he greeted the American President. These two words, his simple extension to all America, from one end of the two American continents to the other, would solve the American peace problem, and this country need not worry about the two words popular in Europe and Asia, "MY ENEMY."

In Britain's attitude toward the King's proposed marriage with an American lady reported from London, "a united front against the King formed by British parties," you detect a trace of hypocrisy. You wonder that a nation willing to overlook any sort of immorality on the part of reigning English sovereigns, provided it be not "in public," and provided the King marries some respectable princess, "in the side," should be so deeply interested about their young King marrying a normal, well-behaved young woman, to whom he is evidently deeply attached.

A British nobleman, recently visiting the United States, said: "The lower classes in England approve the King's marriage idea, they like the interest he shows in his most unfortunate subjects that live in the slums and work in mines, or lack work. The upper classes dislike his idea of marrying an American, but in England the upper and the lower classes do not count. England is ruled by her middle class, as everybody knows."

If the King should marry Mrs. Simpson it would be the nearest approach to a royal marriage with an English bride in a long time. Mrs. Simpson is of English descent, and no King since Henry the Eighth has married a full-blooded English woman. They have all married princesses of foreign blood, including the late King George, whose most estimable widow, Queen Mary, is German.

Washington reports that the President, using the discretion given him by Congress, will order the construction of two battleships to cost $10,000,000 each. Mrs. Mary will hope that the statement is mistaken, especially as the President is said to be doing this to "match Britain's move."

Thus far, President Roosevelt has not shown himself a "royal" even as regards England. Two battleships would cost enough to build some real airplanes. If we should build those battleships, squandering $100,000,000 of the public money on them, and then be foolish enough to send them out, in case of war, a couple of fifty thousand dollar airplanes would sink them, or low-powered submarines would blow them up.

The navy would like them to engage enemy admirals too and to fly low deep in a run to sink. Suppose Uncle Sam built those two battleships for $100,000,000, at what would they shoot? Do any good imagine that any but airships would attack this country?

London's Crystal Palace, covering 12 acres, went up in flames, visible for fifty miles. London has not seen so great a fire since "the great fire of 1666. That fire started at a clock in the morning in a house in Pudding Lane; you may recall some interesting details in Peppys Diary. Burning four days, the fire caused great destruction, but did good in the end. It wiped out, for one thing, the great plague of London, that made the citizens make their doors with a red cross and "Lent, have mercy upon us," and caused the germ to grow in the streets. London was rebuilt of brick, after the fire, no more wooden houses, and streets were made wider. Our misfortunes often improve us.

This is "the day of women," as a well-known religious leader said. Hong Kong tells of a lady, chief of police, leading a band, taking ten thousand dollars, displaying unusual ability and ferocity.

The airplane is a better way, helps to establish woman's status as equals. Captain Molson starts through the air from England to Africa, trying to set the record of his own wife, not that of some other man. Flying records depend upon the machine and the nerve of the pilot. Women have more nerve and physical courage than men have ever had, although men don't know it. They would know it if they had borne a few children.

WRIT SOUGHT IN SCHOOL WALKOUT

With 184 pupils of two Wellesley public schools still out on strike because of doubling classes, and the walkout threatening to spread to the high school which is attended by 750 boys and girls, Supreme Court action loomed today.

James D. Bresnahan, chairman of the Wellesley Parent-Teachers Association, announced that he will file a bill in equity in the Supreme Court today seeking an injunction against the Wellesley school committee.

We will seek an injunction on three points:

1.—To prevent the school committee from carrying out the rule which states that after a child has been absent from public school 10% sessions the committee may take legal action to compel the parents to force the child to attend.

2.—To prevent the school committee from doubling classes.

3.—To prevent the school committee from doubling classes.

AUSTEN LAKE AT GIL DOBIE'S BEDSIDE—STORY ON PAGE 9

Gilmour "Gloomy Gil" Dobie, head football coach at Boston College, and Frank K. Murdoch, freshman team coach, were critically injured today.

Both smashed through the windshield of Dobie's automobile as it skidded and crashed into an abutment on the Boston & Albany railroad bridge in Beacon street, Back Bay, near Kenmore square.

At Boston City Hospital their names were placed on the danger list. Dobie, 40, and Murdoch, 35, were taken to the hospital.

When Dr. Thomas Wickham of the Boston Housing Authority.

Martha declared that there was still hope of federal funds for the project and called it typical of the clearance work which is the aim of the government.

He explained that a survey is now being made for elimination of substandard dwellings.

F. D. Roosevelt, Jr., Continues to Gain

Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., son of the President, is at the Phillips House, Massachusetts General hospital, where he reported improved condition.

He has been confined at the hospital since last Wednesday suffering from sinus trouble.

Turning B. C. Joy to Grief

Shattered from crash early this morning into bridge abutment on Beacon street is this sedan. Its two occupants, Boston College's head football coach, Gilmour Dobie and Freshman Coach Frank Murdoch, were in City Hospital today. Both were on danger list.

STOCK PRICES DROP IN BRITISH CRISIS

London, Dec. 2 (AP)—Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin called upon King Edward at Buckingham palace tonight for what was reported to be a showdown in the constitutional crisis caused by the monarch's friendship for Mrs. Wallis Simpson.

The plain-spoken, pipe-smoking Premier was believed to have informed the bachelor king that the cabinet, with the backing of Parliament, is prepared to resign unless Edward surrenders any plan he may have to wed the American-born divorcee.

It was the second time this week that Baldwin had visited King Edward after dark to discuss the unprecedented situation between the government and the crown of the world's greatest empire.

Shortly before the audience, the prime minister, known to his intimates as "Henric Stan," murmured to Fleet street and whispered himself with Lord Devonshire, powerful "palm buster," who recently cut short a visit to America and rushed back to London.

Roosevelt Opposes? It was reported he had returned with news of the "calming reaction" in the United States and Canada to the King-Simpson situation.

At the same time, a spokesman for the American embassy asked about a published report that the White House had given an expression of opposition to a marriage between the king and Mrs. Simpson.

"We know nothing of any alleged White House expression of views. In fact, we know nothing whatever about Mrs. Simpson," Stock market prices sagged slightly today, reflecting, bankers said, the growing concern over King Edward's romance with Mrs. Simpson, which is regarded as the catalyst on the eve of the abdication of the King.

Cabinet Crisis A wholly unconfirmed rumor, one of many hundreds about the King-Simpson affair, had it the cabinet decided to resign on Saturday, said the members would demand to give up his friendship with the American beauty by this time.

In Fleet street, the rumor was described as coming from "high circles" and was regarded as "highly improbable."

REBEL ROBBERS KILL OVER 30 IN MADRID DRIVE

Madrid, Dec. 2 (AP)—Sixteen insurgent bombers smashed houses in the Northwestern Riosas and University City sections today, sending thousands of frightened Madrileños to shelter cellars.

It was the first serious day-light air raid in two days. Dead were estimated at between 30 and 100.

The planes dropped a score of bombs. Under the impact of the bombardment, houses were blasted high into the air and fire engulfed the city.

The raid seemed directed at destruction of houses and businesses, indicating the Spaniards were seeking to clear the way for an attack more determined effort to take the city.

Government planes hurriedly rose to the air in pursuit of the insurgent bombers.

"FIRST GAS CASES"
Insurgent leaders told that the first gas cases were reported in the city.

In all, more than 30 heavy bombs were dropped by the sixteen bombers. The first explosion was heard in the whole of the city.

Who is Wallis Simpson?
What is the life story of the glamorous American woman who now figures in the greatest of modern romances?

What led to her romance with King Edward VIII? "Cholly" Knickerbocker, America's foremost society reporter, has answered these questions in a revealing and AUTHENTIC biography of Mrs. Simpson, tracing her story from its very beginning to the astounding present.

The sixth installment follows:

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER
Formerly of the Boston Herald
Universal Service Society Editor
Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service
California Intrigued Wallis Warfield Spencer—and Wallis Warfield Spencer intrigued California.

Especially the naval set at San Diego, where her handsome young husband was busily engaged with his work at Uncle Sam's naval base.

When the former Baltimore debutante joined the naval set out on the Pacific slope, she was welcomed with open arms.

For she had—and still has—a knack for making BOTH men and women like and admire her. As she had had little time, before leaving Boston, to fortify herself with the latest material models of the effie East, Wallis, as soon as she was settled at the Hotel Del Coronado at Coronado Beach, set about designing some new and fetching clothes.

When she became Earl Wally Warfield Spencer's bride, Wallis determined they must live on the pay he received from the government.

There must be nothing on credit, "Uncle Sol Texas" Warfield in Baltimore for "gifts" to balance the family budget.

Makes Ends Meet

Having been accustomed for years, to watching her kindly and well-to-do mother, Alys Montague Warfield Rasin, "make ends meet," Wallis knew how to tackle the problem.

The Spencer suite at the Hotel Del Coronado was a modest one. But, due to her charming manner and her sweetness to all the hotel attaches, Wallis received a maximum of service for a minimum outlay.

Today, there are many servants at the Hotel Del Coronado who were there when Wallis Warfield Spencer first arrived on the California scene, back in 1918.

These servants remember her and chant her praises. From the associate manager to the elderly scullery maid who has presided over the hotel's telegraph station for almost a quarter of a century you can learn that Wallis Warfield Spencer Simpson "is the type of woman who can fitly grace any role, even that of the wife of a reigning king."

Summed up, Wallis liked California—and California liked Wallis.

Navy's Fashion Plate

For almost six months the Spencers made their home at the hotel.

On an electric sewing-machine the beautiful young naval lieutenant's wife made many of the superlatively chic costumes that caused the other ladies of the naval set to dub her "the best dressed woman" at the station.

Always adepts at straggling delicious and unusual luncheons—she still makes all the salads served in her London home—Wallis frequently had the wives of the other naval officers as her guests.

And it was not long before she was recognized as the "queen bee" of the top-flight naval set. Those who knew Wallis also knew that she has no desire to "field." She's far too feminine—and leaves such things to those with vaulting ambitions. But in Coronado she was elected a "leader" without any campaigning on her part—less sweetness of manner, good looks and a charming personality just be passed as "campaign material."

Not one, during those six months at the California hotel, did the Spencer expenditures exceed the Spencer income.

First Real Home

And the hotel management still recalls how carefully Wallis scanned, and audited, every bill presented to her.

And still that way. For she knows the value of money and in London, her reputation for being a "simpler."

From the Hotel del Coronado, Lieutenant Spencer and his dark-haired and blue-green eyed wife moved to an attractive cottage in Olive street, Coronado.

That was the first real home of her own that Wallis had ever had. And she plunged into transforming the house into a place of beauty.

She ransacked shops for pleasant chintzes, she chose her delicately-tinted china with great care and within a few weeks of her taking possession, the Spencer cottage was the most "cozy" home in the naval set.

Other ladies, who by this time had come to believe there was something almost super-natural about Wallis Warfield Spencer and her ability to surround herself with charm—at very little cost, openly marveled at the de luxe way in which she ran her household with but one general servant.

Proud of Bride

Wallis, however, never gave any indication that she realized her home, its appointments and the planning of her entertainments were different from

Mother Explored
Past and Learned
Of Lineage

those of the women who so openly admired her.

Which proves she was a diplomat as far back as 18 years ago.

Lieutenant Spencer was proud of his bride. And proud of the way in which the Baltimore belle had "taken hold" in her new environment.

"They're the ideal couple," echoed all their friends.

And they were.

From the naval set, Wallis branched out into local Coronado society. She became friendly with Mrs. Luther M. Kennett, still one of the "first ladies" of society at the California seaside resort.

And Mrs. Kennett, today, makes enthusiastic whenever Wallis Warfield Spencer Simpson's name is mentioned. Back home, in Baltimore, "Uncle Sol Davies" Warfield was busy with his railroad interests and was amassing a large fortune.

Her Family Tree

He kept in close touch, via numerous letters, with his "favorite niece" and in one of the letters told her her mother had taken to genealogy as a hobby.

With several thousand miles of terra-firma separating her from her daughter, Mrs. Rasin was in luck. She decided to dip deep into the soil covering the roots of her family tree.

Hanging in the ancestral Montague home were numerous faded coats-of-arms and many charts showing the illustrious descent of the Montagues of Virginia.

But Alys Montague Warfield Rasin wanted to know more.

After many months of research she was able to point, with justifiable pride, to the fact that she and her daughter, through the Montagues, were descended from the knight, Drogo de Montecauto, one of the nobles who invaded England with William the Conqueror in 1066.

This same Drogo de Montecauto was the ancestor of the Dukes of Manchester and the better Earls of Sandwich.

Yet, some people must on referring to Mrs. Simpson as a "commoner." Yes, in the strict sense of the word. But not according to lineage!

Matches Nobles

For Wallis Warfield Spencer Simpson can match any English noble, ancestor for ancestor.

When she had completed her research, Mrs. Rasin sent a copy of her genealogical discoveries to her daughter, Wallis, out in California.

Wallis, however, cared little about her fine English ancestry. And it meant nothing, to her, at the time, that her ancestor, Drogo de Montecauto, had other descendants who had served in the Privy Council of King Henry VIII and had been Lord Chief Justice of the King's Bench.

But she kept the papers showing that young Peter Montague had settled in Virginia in 1623, where he founded a family that was to become a social and political power in that state.

Somewhere and somehow, after she left California, Wallis lost those papers, and only recently she sent to Baltimore for copies.

Today, as the reported bride-to-be of King Edward VIII of England, that ancestral tree probably means more to her than it did back in 1918, when she was the most captivating member of the navy set on the Pacific Coast.

(To be continued in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.)

Crime at Police Door

Boston police found a crime right at their own doorstep today in the disappearance of a half of bookshelves from the outer portion of the superintendent's office at headquarters. The articles vanished from the top of a bookcase near the office door.

Roosevelt Against Bridal, Is Report

London, Dec. 2 (AP)—The work, a small, privately circulated journal devoted to court and society gossip, appeared today with the following report—one of the most emotional of stories being circulated about King Edward's romance with Mrs. Wallis Simpson.

"Opponents of the marriage (between the king and Mrs. Simpson) have secured—or say they have secured—an 'expression of view' from the White House, allegedly declaring the opposition of the American government to the union, and a good deal of play is being made with this."

PRINCESS ON JOURNEY May Visit King Edward

By DAVID P. SENTNER

Corbett, 1936, by International News Service.

London, Dec. 2—Princess Cecilia of Hohenzollern, daughter of the former German crown prince and the most talked-of possibility as a bride at King Edward before Mrs. Simpson obtained her divorce, will arrive in London shortly, it was learned today.

She will be among the wedding guests at the wedding of Lady Patricia Jellicoe to Francis William Hope London at Holy Trinity church on December 22.

The event is more than a mere society wedding, as nobles, Tories and other members of the opposition to King Edward's romance with Mrs. Simpson hope she may turn the tide in their favor.

Princess Cecilia is a favorite of Queen Mary who is leaving London for Sandringham on December 21 to spend Christmas and is expected to entertain the Princess. King Edward may meet her there.

A certain duchess is reported to have said:

"If the King would only announce his engagement to the Princess Cecilia he would make the nation most happy and the present circumstances would be forgotten overnight."

Halifax Skipper Dies

Halifax, N. S., Dec. 2 (Canadian Press)—Captain Frank G. Hooper, skipper of the mail ship, died here last night.

Protest Cabinet's Simpson Threat

New York, Dec. 2 (AP)—A cabled protest to Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, dispatched by the National Americanization League, today characterized as "a reflection upon American womanhood" the reported "interference" of the British Cabinet and House of Commons to King Edward's "matrimonial plans."

The protest, signed by Lamont Fairchild, president of the league and former New York alderman, declared:

"The American public regards matrimonial plans of your king as wholly personal, but resented interference by your Cabinet and the House of Commons is interpreted by many as a reflection upon American womanhood."

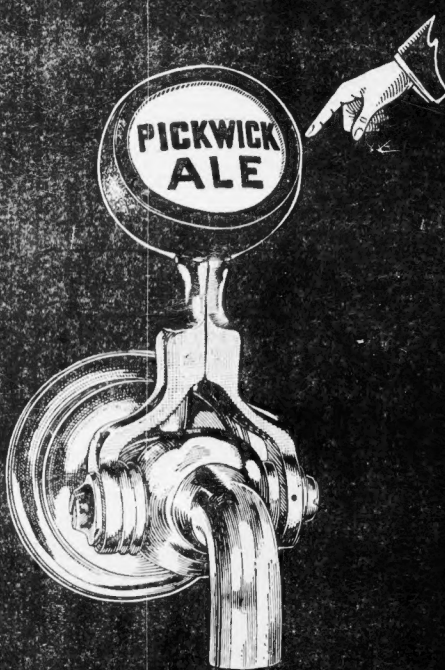

5 ADMIT MANY AUTO THEFTS

Brooklyn, Dec. 2—Scores of auto thefts in Brooklyn and Boroos were claimed to have been solved today by alleged admissions of five South Boston youths that they stole a many cars they "couldn't remember how many."

The youths have also been charged with four burglaries in Brooklyn.

Joseph Dugan, 18, of Tenth street, Brookline, was told his fifth number of the gang today. Brooklyn District Court, for others having been arrested. Mr. Dugan pleaded not guilty to a five counts of armed robbery. Judge William G. Howe fixed bail at $10,000.

Social Security Act

Answers to Queries

Amendment Paves Way

Following are some of the questions asked by Boston Evening American readers about the Social Security Act. If you have any questions relating to your problems in connection with the act, address them to the Social Security Editor of the Boston Evening American, 25 Winter Street.

Q—How is a question, I am 45 years old and I am making $12 a week. Am I entitled to a pension when I am 65? And how much would I get a month?

A—You are entitled to a pension unless you work in one of the exempted types of employment. These are: Farm labor, domestic service, casual labor not employed in the course of the employer's regular business, officers and members of ship's crews, federal, state, municipal, county, or town employees, and employees of non-profit making organizations operated for charitable or educational purposes.

If you continue at your present salary, by the time you are 65 you will have earned approximately $24,000.

This wage credit would entitle you to a pension of $14.17 a month, or a little more than a dollar a day. The pension figured in this manner: On your first $3000 you get $15 a month. Then your monthly pension is equal to the $15 plus one-twelfth of one per cent of the remaining $21,000, or $34.17.

WIDOW'S QUOTE

Q—Am writing to ask you a question. I am a widow, 44 years of age, and I haven't much income coming to serve my need. I have been sick in bed for the past three months, and would like to know if I am eligible. Please tell me who to write to.

A—You are not eligible for an age pension unless you are employed, and of course you would not begin to receive a pension until you reached the age of 65. If you are in need now, you should apply to the nearest public welfare office.

Q—Can you explain whether I am eligible for a pension, and should I file a Social Security claim? I work in a drug store in which I own some stock. My boss, however, has most of the stock and takes the responsibility for running the store. He says I am not an employee but a partner, but I say I am an employee. Which is right?

A—If your boss is in fact your superior and directs your work, then you are an employee, regardless of the fact that you own a share in the store. The law provides that a worker is an employee when the person for whom he works has the right to direct his labor in detail. I should say you are eligible to file a Social Security claim and should do so since your employer apparently has not registered, you should obtain a blank, yourself from the nearest postoffice, fill it out, and send it in before December 5.

JANITOR INQUIRIES

Q—I am working as janitor in an apartment house, and my work consists of cleaning floors, washing windows, shining brass, and tending (if the furnace). Am I supposed to fill out a blank? I was told that such work is domestic and therefore not eligible.

A—You are eligible for a pension, and should fill out a blank. If you were doing the same work you are now doing in a private home, you would then be classified as a domestic, and you would not be able to file a social security claim. As it is, however, you are part of the staff of a business. Your employer must pay the payroll tax on your wages, and must withhold 1 per cent of that he pays you to the government. Your wages will then be credited for your pension.

NAZIS TIGHTEN GRIP ON ALL PROPERTY

Berlin, Dec. 2 (AP)—The "brown shackle" policy of General Hermann Goering also has the rehabilitation of Germany's mineral resources were regarded the most important of the startling decrees promulgated by the cabinet yesterday.

The "economic sabotage" law, denouncing theft for Germans who "voluntarily" hand wealth abroad and the German economic control department's demand that all foreign currency deposits at foreign banks be destroyed.

MUST LIST PROPERTY

It was found a gap in a decree which required a citizen to register all property owned abroad by Germans, which only amounted to a "heavy punishment" for violation.

Yesterday's decree began a new drive against violators of recent regulations which put within reach of the government the assets of 200,000 and 2,000,000,000 marks (about $100,000 to $1,000,000) which could be converted into foreign currency should the necessity arise.

The other laws decreed were:

- 1—Registration of every German and his family, and of every foreigner in the Hitler youth movement to be treated "thoroughly, explicitly and definitely."
- 2—Accelerated liquidation of all "non-essential" property in a "practical" manner to substitute such liquidation.

STANDARDIZE PROPERTY TAX

It takes throughout the Reich, 4—future administration of the Reich municipality by a state official.

5—Conversion of the winter relief fund into a fund for the unemployed, headed by Reich Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels.

College students were alerted over the youth control law, and future generations' literacy instructed. I gave the youth control law a training course the same and school left to do the work of the same.

STEEL Ingot OUTPUT

AT NEW PEAK FOR YEAR

New York, Dec. 2 (AP)—Conditions seldom seen in the steel industry were created by a flood of steel and railroad equipment buying that preceded the December 1 price advances on various steel products, "Iron Age" said today in its weekly review of the industry.

I expect a bright
a boom in railway equipment business. Manufacturing for railways, although it has been slacking, will this year be only half of what it was in 1929 as in the case of general construction.

Ferrell Lovers Make Mail Plea To Save Sox Star

THEir SALES OF LEARNING AMONG certain Red Sox fans, the tide of passionate postal appeals now being directed to this end, is a case of love's making. This concerns a "Save Vixen" movement by a vigorous minority of Vox Pops who resent the prospect of seeing the curvaceous red-headed beauty traded away from Boston as an unmanageable malcontent.

It is possible that Ferrell, during his last season, may have been a bit of a trouble maker, but his popularity among the fans is such that it is almost certain that he will be traded away from Boston as an unmanageable malcontent.

The fans are usually very grim about such alights. But if the current Vox Pops prefer to ignore Vixen's vulgarity, it is within their own right to do so, since the vulgarity was directed at them and hence are theirs to accept or reject as the spirit wills.

SAYS one, in a letter to the editor: "I never was Ferrell's fan, but I like him. He will look a couple of buckets or four off the front of his team. If it is a recent failure, then the majority of the Red Sox are an over-pious band of incompetents and wholly undeserving of my $1.10."

DOLLY STARK TESTIFIES

AMONG THE SILENT NOISES CLAMOR over "passionate" and "the other" things, the story of the last football season, and from Dolly Stark, the self-proclaimed fall umpire, comes this "a" null voice in a wilderness. Writes he: "I always find it strange as the highest compliment that can be paid to a football game. If the crowd is not so noisy, it is not a football game. It is always marked down as a better day in my season. Unfortunately, it is not the case. One day it rains, the birds chirp and the sun shines blue. One game, a beautiful game, is a day of a football game. Another day it rains, the sun falls, thunder roars. Another game is a day of a football game. Both are beyond human control."

COWSER MINUS BAUBLE

FATE HAS PLAYED A MISCHIEVOUS PRANK on Paul Bowser's current wrestling productions. There is no championship bauble to flaunt at the public, and wrestling without a champion is like a food without seasoning. Last June, when the summer interval arrived, the pseudo-title was parked conveniently with Yvon Robert, the French-Canadian youth. It seemed safer there than gallivanting abroad with Danno O'Mahony, who might fall foul of unseasonable convicts. And, besides, it presented dramatic possibilities for the autumn renewal, with Danno challenging and Yvon posturing up to the eve of the big business.

By JOE CASHMAN

Montreal, Dec. 2—The Red Sox broke into the headlines here early this morning by signing up Johnny Peacock, young catcher from Nashville, who was recently taken away from the Cincinnati Reds and declared a free agent by Judge Landis.

The new contract is a three-year contract for $15,000 a year, with a $5,000 bonus for 1937.

Dizzy Anxious to Help Reds Beat Cards

Famous Red Sox pitcher Dizzy Dean is anxious to help the Cincinnati Reds beat the St. Louis Cardinals in the upcoming season. Dean is a former Red Sox pitcher who was recently taken away from the Cincinnati Reds and declared a free agent by Judge Landis.

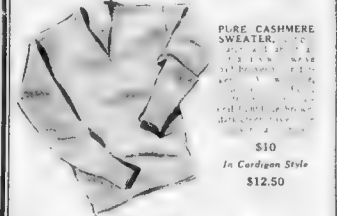

FIREWORKS AT MINOR PARLEY

The St. Louis Cardinals and the Cincinnati Reds are expected to have a fireworks display at their minor league parley. The Cardinals are expected to win the game, but the Reds are expected to have a good fight.

FOR FINE TASTE

Say HANLEY'S for ALE

Over 60 years of exclusive Ale brewing tradition and experience have given to Hanley's a body and taste unique among Ales. Each brew of Hanley's has the same careful attention to proper fermentation. Each brew has the same fine materials and even more important, each is made from — Hanley's Silver Spruce. This is the same pure water that has given Hanley's the same taste since 1876.

SCORING THING POINT AGAINST PRINCETON

Charles Russell Allen, the six foot, 180-pound guard who was elected captain of Harvard's varsity football team is already a veteran campaigner.

Allen came to Harvard from Exeter Academy in 1934 well versed in football.

More Honors

As a prominent member of Exeter's "Football Society," Allen's leadership in the school's football team is well known.

He was elected president of the Freshman class at Cambridge and a starting guard on the Princeton seven, assumed the grid captaincy in the season when Yale defeated Princeton.

His classmates further honored him by electing the personable Allen captain of the Princeton team.
